LAWN AND PASTURE GRASSES

BERMUDA OR MANIENIE

Because of climatic conditions in the Hawaiian Islands, the Mariana Islands and on most of the Islands of the Central and South Pacific, it has been found that Bermuda Grass, commonly called Manienie in Hawaii makes the most satisfactory lawns.

We always carry an ample stock of this popular grass seed.

1-lb. bag—covers about 200 square feet..... 90c

BENT GRASS SEED

For lawn purposes the Bents might well be considered the "aristocrats" of the grasses. When grown properly and well cared for they make very beautiful lawns and produce a fine thick turf.

Bent grasses are in use for lawns and golf courses, under various climate conditions, but since they are susceptible to injury from fungus diseases they are recommended for those who have the time and will to study carefully their management.

ASTORIA BENT—For lawn or putting green; grows a luxuriant dark green velvety turf and creeps mostly by underground root-stalks. Sow 1 pound to 20x25 or 500 square feet.

HIGHLAND BENT—A very hardy Bent which is considered less susceptible to the fungus diseases and is recommended for sowing on putting greens or lawns that get considerable wear. It is fine leaved, upright growth, moderately light green color and spreads by strong underground root stalks. Sow 1 pound to 15x20 or 300 square feet.

SEASIDE BENT—A true creeping Bent, producing surface runners which root at each joint when they come in contact with the soil. Once established, the growth is upright, of fine texture and a beautiful rich green with a thick, smooth and enduring turf. Sow 1 pound to 20x25 or 500 square feet.

Prices on all of the above.....1-lb. bag $2.75; 10-lb. bag $26.50

We are prepared to quote prices at all times on:

DICHONDRA

You've heard about this new type lawn that looks like compact, dark green clover. Once established it needs mowing only twice a year to keep it in perfect condition. It grows in either sun or shade. It creates a strong turf with little watering. If you have had trouble growing grass anywhere, why not try this new type lawn covering. Here is the first grass substitute that has had any merit. Tree roots do not bother it, and if you want a covering around shrub beds to help shade the ground and retain moisture, you can use Dichondra. Plant 3 ounces of seed to 1000 square feet of area to be covered. Do not use regular fertilizers. Feed after well established with LIQUID FERTILIZER only. For best results we recommend HYPONEX.

$1.25 packet; $8.00 for 3 ounces; $17.00 for 8 ounces

SWEET PEAS

Culture of Sweet Peas

Culture. First and most important, plant as early in the spring as the conditions will permit. Seeds should be sown at the rate of one ounce to 25 feet. Make a trench about 3 or 4 inches deep, planting seeds in the bottom about 2 inches deep, pressing the soil firmly. After the plants are well up, thin to 4 or 5 inches apart and draw the soil around them until the trench is filled above the level. This gives a depth to the roots, preserving the moisture. Keep the ground well worked and water if needed, an occasional soaking down being better than a daily sprinkling. Keep the flowers cut close.

Fall Sowing of Sweet Peas. In warmer climates, fall sowing results in finer blooms, particularly where hot summers prevail and tend to dwarf growth and stunt flowers.

MIXED SPENCER SWEETPEAS

You'll enjoy larger blossoms on longer stems through fall planting. In early October, plant in mellow, enriched soil, inoculating the seed with NITRAGIN before planting. You may trench if you choose, but trenching is not necessary in warmer climates.

SPECIAL MIXTURE SPENCER SWEET PEAS

This is our special mixture and is a blend of the most beautiful colors in Spencer Sweet Peas.

WHAT, HOW AND WHEN TO PLANT

WHAT AND HOW TO PLANT

In selecting vegetables to plant include the ones your family should eat as well as the kinds they like. A well-balanced diet is most important and should include green vegetables, yellow vegetables, leafy vegetables, root vegetables and tomatoes.

Leafy or green vegetables for crisp salads. These are rich in vitamins and minerals.

Root vegetables, beets, carrots, turnips and onions, all rich in health-giving vitamins.

Vine vegetables—peas, beans, cucumbers, on the fence or trellis. The heavy-fruited types, like vine squash, and pumpkin, should be grown on the ground as always, among the corn to save space.

Flowers to complement the vegetables. Morale does not stop with the stomach. Flowers for the house, fresh from the garden, are essential. Plant them, as shown, on the plan to make the view from the house attractive and colorful.

SOW SEEDS AT RIGHT TIME

Work down the top soil with a rake until it is level, fine and in perfect physical condition, before attempting to plant seed. Seed should be sown thinly in shallow rills, made with a stick as shown in the sketch. To make the rows straight, follow a line of string stretched between stakes placed at either end of the row. The depth of this rill depends on the variety sown. Check with the depth of planting chart on page 21 before sowing seed.

Seed may be sown directly from the packet, or by rubbing a pinch of seed between the thumb and the first two fingers. This latter method gives a thinner distribution of the seed. Small seeds should not be thicker than 10 to the inch. Sow one row at a time and after each row, cover the seed lightly, touching the loose soil with a rake. Place the board used for walking between the rows on top of the sown seed and walk across it to firm the soil for better germination.

Treatment of the seed with "Spargon" will eliminate a great deal of damping off, and rotting of the seed after sowing, especially if sown during the wet weather.

If the soil is moist, but not wet, at the time of sowing, watering will not be necessary before the seedlings are up. If it dries out, however, sprinkle carefully so as not to wash out the small seedlings.

USE PLENTY OF FERTILIZER

Fertilizers are very important. The food value of garden vegetables for human consumption depends greatly on their mineral content, derived from the soil. The vitamin content depends on the vigor of growth and the abundance of sunlight. Therefore the fertilizing of the soil is important to insure vigorous growth and healthy mineral and vitamin-rich vegetables. A good practice is to spade commercial fertilizer, balanced to supply the necessary proportions of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. Later in the season, applications of fertilizers in small doses, as side dressings, keep vegetables in active growth. We recommend Vigoro for general all purpose use.

WATERING IS IMPORTANT

Watering will be necessary during the enough in the day to evaporate drops of water from the leaves before nightfall. Water generously, soaking the soil deeply each time, rather than by quick "sprinkles" with the hose. In this way, the roots will grow deep, feed better and be protected from drouth, in case watering is missed during a hot dry spell. Once every week or ten days should be ample for most soils. No rules can be formulated to determine the necessity of watering. Observation of the soil, and testing with a shovel, will best determine when to water.

CULTIVATE OFTEN

To conserve moisture and promote growth of plants, give a complete cultivation of the surface soil the day following each rain or watering. Be careful not to go deep in the soil, else the roots will be injured. Most plants benefit by frequent and regular cultivation. Beans and peas, however, need only a light cultivation until they begin to set flowers, when further cultivation may cause the buds to drop and reduce the crop.

SOW SEEDS AT THE PROPER DEPTH

The above chart gives the ideal depth of cover for vegetable seed in well drained garden soil. Heavy soils should be lightened by addition of gypsum, peat, manure, bean straw or similar humus material. Don't sow too deep—the smaller the seed the lighter the cover.

SPRAY AND DUST FOR PESTS

Insects and diseases may infest the vegetable garden but may never become a serious problem if one watches for evidence of damage and takes prompt action. Sprays and dusts are available in convenient packages to combat every garden pest. When spraying cover all parts of the plant and both sides of the leaves. Do a thorough job promptly and avoid a serious infestation.

SPACE SAVING IN THE VEGETABLE GARDEN

Simple expedients that save space in the garden and make better vegetables are always helpful to the home gardener. The average plan will call for the easier kinds: Beets, carrots, swiss chard, leaf lettuce, onions and corn, all of which can be grown in small gardens. A few others, requiring a larger space, can be grown by training on poles, trellises, or fences, thus utilizing a minimum of soil space. Other quick maturing kinds can be grown between rows of the slower growing, and longer maturing kinds, or even between the plants in the row. The ground then does double duty, and it is therefore quite essential to fertilize the soil in order to support these extra crops and to watch the watering more carefully for the demands of the garden will be greater. Try a few of these methods—save the extra effort of a larger garden by intensively working a smaller area.
